COMPLAINT

TRIAL BY JURY

ECF Case

NATURE OF THE ACTION AND THE PARTIES

1. This is an action to redress unlawful employment practices, under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended (“Title VII”), 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq., the New York State Human Rights Law (“NYSHRL”), N.Y. Exec. L. § 290 et seq., the New York City Human Rights Law, (“NYCHRL”).

2. Plaintiff Mary Christine Whittaker (“Ms. Whittaker” or “Plaintiff”) is an adult citizen of the United States residing in the County of New York.

3. Defendant The Art Students League (“ASL”) is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New York with corporate offices and its principal place of business in the County of New York. The Art Students League of New York is an art school founded in 1875.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claims pursuant to Title VII, 42 U.S.C.

§ 2000e-5(f) and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1343, 1367(a) and 2201.

6. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to Title VII, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) (3), 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b).

7. On May 30, 2007, EEOC issued a Notice Of Right To Sue, which Plaintiff received several days later.

8. Plaintiff has satisfied all of the statutory prerequisites to filing this action with this Court.

9. Plaintiff seeks an award of appropriate relief.

FACTS

10. Ms. Whittaker, former employee of ASL, a defendant, has an undergraduate and a graduate degree in fine arts. She was an Athena Fellow via Mark Di Suvero/Socrates Sculpture Park, the largest steel sculptor park in North America. She has participated in the highest volume level and most professional environment in her profession.

10. Because she was concerned about the safety of the institution's students and faculty, Ms. Whittaker brought her concerns to Joseph Rossi, Deputy Director, ("Rossi") both verbally and in writing.

11. Ms. Whittaker's report disclosed that the: (1) the Oxygen/Acetylene tanks improperly secured; (2) there were leaks in the Acetylene tank line lines; improper markings on the Oxygen/Acetylene system; (3) loose Oxygen Acetylene torch sets and improperly assembled hat sets; (4) improper installation of an Oxygen/Argon tanks to a Tig welder; (5) improper storage of tanks in compressor room; and (6) pressure on students and employees to use damaged and inoperable Welding Gloves.

12. In addition, she also brought to his attention that her breathing was often hampered and minimized due to the amount of smoke and toxins that were generated in the facility after each use. She followed a routine of taking showers at ASL to minimize the amount of toxins in her hair on her body. Despite her attempts at detoxification, she would often experience black mucus and limited breathing with a metal taste in her mouth for days. A few students mentioned experiencing similar side effects.

Sussman's Participation in Creating a Hostile Workplace

13. The above concerns and safety recommendations were challenged by Sussman, not as a professional with a different opinion, but rather as a personal and physically intimidating attack that created a hostile working environment within the meaning of Title VII.

14. For example, on February 22, 2006, Ms. Whittaker was confronted by Sussman where he demanded that she leave her leave her classroom unattended in order to fabricate a project for his students. When she declined, Sussman's temperament became visibly abrasive and his demeanor escalated to an uncomfortable level as he demanded in an extremely elevated voice for her to step out into the hallway. Once there, Sussman commenced with condescending comments and he appeared to be clearly out of control to the point where Ms. Whittaker was forced to take evasive measures to avoid any physical contact with Sussman. Ms. Whittaker requested that Sussman end the conversation and not to follow her back to her classroom. Sussman refused and he continued to espouse threatening language while making physically threatening gestures toward Ms. Whittaker.

15. Finally, Ms. Whittaker was forced to retreat to a safe distance in order to avoid Sussman's advances with a metal object as he directed in toward Ms. Whittaker's face. Ms. Whittaker would suggest that the sole reason for Sussman not striking her was due to his realization that there were student witnessing the confrontation.

16. Two days later, on February 24, 2006, Ms. Whittaker received a telephone message from Joseph Rossi regarding his concern that the situation was escalating between her and Sussman. Ms. Whittaker was unsuccessful in her attempts to reach Rossi. Ms. Whittaker than made an attempt to reach Ira Goldberg, the ASL director ("Goldberg"). Although she did not speak to him, she did leave a very detailed description of the Sussman confrontation on his answering machine.

17. Accordingly, Goldberg, now aware of the incident, paid a visit to Ms. Whitaker's classroom later that day to discuss "the culture of ASL." According to Goldberg, such a culture involved "people becoming very impassioned and sometimes things get out of control" with yelling and screaming and perhaps idle threats to ones physical safety. Goldberg then scheduled a group meeting for the 28th of February with Sussman, Rossi and Ms. Whittaker in which he would be the mediator. Later that day Goldberg cancelled the meeting without any explanation and it was never rescheduled. To make sure there was a written record of the incident and in accordance with the ASL policy, as stated in the employee handbook, Ms. Whittaker submitted a written report to Goldberg.

18. For the next few months there were a genuine lack or respect for Ms. Whitaker's safely and well being as exhibited by the shouting and yelling from other ASL employees, including but not limited to, Steven Madden and Joseph Rossi. Throughout this period, Sussman continually glared while exhibiting a hostile intent whenever he saw Ms. Whittaker. Such behavior would make any normal person extremely uncomfortable. Ms. Whittaker was extremely uncomfortable. In fact, she reports of one incident where Sussman lurked in the hall, well after his class ended, with no other purpose but to intimidate Ms. Whittaker. This is kind of atmosphere faced by Ms. Whittaker. It was cultivated, encouraged and supported by Goldberg and Rossi.

The Sexually Charged Working Environment

19. Other evidence of an unwelcomed sexually charged working environment occurred with a series of events that taking place between April and May of 2006. One day in particular, on or around May 1, 2006, Dana Parlier, an instructor and soon to be immediate supervisor, passed her in the hallway just before she was to enter the sculpture room. As she passed him, he stated “just lie back and enjoy the ride.” Ms. Whittaker had no idea what he was talking so she asked to please explain. His response was that she would understand and she should just keep walking. On entering the room there again was a three-foot chalk drawing of a woman’s vagina on the table top. Ms. Whittaker discussed this incident with other ASL administrative employees and longtime students only to discover that Parlier has a history of inappropriate sexual comments and behavior directed toward women employees and students.

20. On May 12, 2006, Ms. Whittaker encountered another sexually charged working environment orchestrated by Parlier. On that day, Ms. Whittaker arrived for class and proceeded to the locker room. On entering the locker room she encountered Rufus Douglas, a janitor (“Douglas”) and Dana Parlier, her direct supervisor (“Parlier”) having a discussion. As Ms. Whittaker entered the room, the conversation abruptly changed to one of a sexual nature. Other than a perfunctory greeting, Ms. Whittaker did not engage Parlier or Douglas in an extended conversation. It was at that point that Douglas inquired as to why she was not speaking. Ms. Whittaker offered no extend comment other than to suggest that she is not deliberately avoiding them; nonetheless, both men continued speaking about sexually explicit photographs of Parlier's girlfriend posted inside his locker.

21. Parlier then asked Douglas to show Ms. Whittaker his wood block carving. The carving depicted a penis shaped in the form of a snake on top a body shaped in the form of a woman's vagina. The carving also depicted the body in bondage with a screw attaching it to a globe of the earth from the base of the body. There were a series of eyes surrounding the image. Parlier then asked Douglas to describe the image to Ms. Whittaker. Douglas responded, in an angry elevated voice while glaring at Ms. Whittaker that "men fuck women and women fuck up the world."

22. Ms. Whittaker replied in a disappointing tone with a touch of sarcasm "impress me." Douglas immediately responded, again in an angry and elevated voice while glaring at Ms. Whittaker, "this will impress you" as he directed his hands down towards his penis. Ms. Whittaker was indeed disappointed with their trite misogynous expressions when they were fully aware that she is a lesbian. Ms. Whittaker simply departed from the locker room. From all appearances, Douglas was emboldened by management's support for his sexual hostility toward Ms. Whittaker

Douglas' Participation in Creating a Hostile Workplace

23. Ms. Whittaker's next encounter with Douglas occurred on May 19, 2006. For Ms. Whittaker, what began an uneventful day culminated in leaving an indelible impression that she will remember for the rest of her life. On her arrival to the ASL building, Ms. Whittaker engaged in a casual conversation with another employee, Sadie Bettis, she did not notice Douglas approaching until he was approximately ten feet away before she attempted to exchange greetings.

24. Douglas, however, was not in the mood to exchange greetings as he aggressively charged toward Ms. Whittaker as he yelled and scream incoherent depicted explicit unlawful sexual acts with a facial expression exhibiting rage and spewing saliva for forty-five minutes. In fact, Douglass was no more that six to eight inches from Ms. Whittaker's face as he leaned in to her yelling a litany of sexually explicit and derogatory remarks and offensive remarks on Ms. Whittaker sexual orientation.

25. Douglas continued scream at Ms. Whitaker in an attempt to induce fear by threatening her with physical harm. Douglas stated that he had a forth degree black belt and was "going to break her neck" and after he raping her several times." Six times Ms. Whittaker attempted to remove herself from what any person would view as dangerous and hostile individual, however, Douglas blocked her from escaping and forced her to her back was against a wall. Something or someone distracted Douglas which gave Ms. Whittaker an opportunity to escape on her seventh attempt. Ms. Whittaker states that she was embarrassed that a fellow employee and at least one student were there to witness the attack.

The Retaliatory Discharge for Complaining

26. After summoning her courage, Ms. Whittaker proceeded to report the Douglass attack, in detail to Rossi and Parlier. Rossi, in a nonchalant manner, interrupted Ms. Whittaker and stated that this incident had something to do with "what happened last week" in the locker room between Ms. Whittaker, Douglas and Parlier, as described above, and placed the blame for the attack on Ms. Whittaker. Rossi further stated that if the attack had happened fifteen minutes prior, Douglass would still be on duty and his employment would have been immediately terminated. Rossi further stated that because the attack occurred more than forty-five minutes prior while Douglas was off-duty, no one had the authority to discipline Douglas for an event that occurred while he was off-duty. When Ms. Whittaker again asked Rossi "what specific course of action was the ASL administration going to take against Douglass," he stated "I'm busy." In response, Ms. Whittaker made it clear that she would be left with no other choice but to report the incident to the police.

27. On May 22, 2006, as a follow-up to her police report, Ms. Whittaker met with Liz Birch, a police assistant, at the 18th Police Precinct to pick up the complaint report and to obtain information on how to file for an Order of Protection. Unfortunately, Ms. Whittaker was not able to file for an Order of Protection because she was not able to get the report. The report was delayed because the intake officer was struck by a motor vehicle.

28. Later that day, after reporting to work, Rossi intercepted her near her locker and requested her presence in the conference room. It was there that Rossi informed Ms. Whittaker that he and Goldberg have concluded that her employment is to be terminated because she was not a good match for ASL. Rossi further stated that the reason for terminating her employment was because she was aggressive and confrontational. Rossi refused to elaborate any further on management's decision to end her employment. On May 30, 2006, Ms. Whittaker received her copy of the Incident Information Slip that is given to a complainant.
